Council Hears Both Praise and Criticism of Meters

North Main Street Merchants Present Objections; Letters Commend Devices.

City council last night heard both praise and criticism of the effect of parking meters and parallel parking

The criticism came from a group of North Main street merchants the praise from a number of individuals

Other matters before council last night included relief financing renting of an apartment for the City hospital superintendent to make more rooms available at the hospital a request for a traffic light at Davids and Columbia streets and a request for adjustment of damage caused at a Marion home recently by the blowup of a sewer line under a basement floor

Council opened its meeting by hearing a proposal of a group of North Main street merchants for modification of the parking meter and parallel parking plan now in effect The proposal was outlined in writing and signed by a group of merchants After it was read Felix Reber attorney and spokesman for the group explained why the proposals were made

Outlines Three Plans

The group outlined three possible plans which it felt would ease the loss of business blamed on the new parking regulations The first plan most favored by the group is to make no use of the meters until 1 p m daily This would give free one-hour parking in the uptown area until 1 p m The group proposes that the meters be used from 1 p m until 9 p m daily The second is to make every other parking space in the uptown area a free parking zone alternating free spaces with metered spaces The third would leave the meters where they are and substitute 35 degree angle parking for parallel parking with the result that every other space would be a free one

Mr Reber said the group is not critical of council but wants consideration given to the loss of business which the group blames on the new traffic regulations Mr Reber said the group at a recent meeting discussed the traffic situation in detail and came to the conclusion that the meters rather than parallel parking were working the hardship on business He said some of the group had heard threats that Marion would be boycotted by groups of persons who formerly traded in Marion unless something is done about the parking meters We have been told that the motorists are going to pay for the meters with the nickels they put in the meters but actually the merchants are paying for them in decreased business he said

Letters Praise Meters

Letters from Ralph K Ruppart and from Clifford B Welch of the Central Labor Union both praising the effect of the meters and parallel parking were read The letters pointed out the relief of traffic congestion on Saturday nights and at other busy times and the disappearance from the heart of the uptown district of the automobiles of store clerks The effect has been to make parking space available for persons who want to transact business the letters pointed out

Howard F Guthery North Main street attorney spoke in favor of the meters asserting that the effect of the new regulations has been beneficial in many ways and that the regulations shouldn't be changed until they have been given a fair trial He said most of the complaints he had heard came from outside the area affected by meters and that he had heard only one complaint from a rural resident He predicted that within a few months council will be getting requests for more meters rather than complaints against those now in use

Thomas Coleman who said he spoke for the truckers of Marion said truckers favor the meters and new regulations and added there had been no accidents involving delivery trucks in the uptown area since the new regulations went into effect

Council President Robert Stief referred the letters and com-

WILLKIE PANS FLYNN'S STAND

Charges "Political Ruthlessness" in Sale of Books by Democrats.

By The Associated Press

COLORADO SPRINGS Colo Aug 13 — Asserting that even Chairman Edward J Flynn of the Democratic national committee should understand that there is a limit to political ruthlessness Wendell L Willkie said today

I am gratified to learn that Attorney General Robert Jackson and Senator Hatch (D-N M) have today joined in my campaign to prevent the Democratic national committee from brazenly violating both the corrupt practices act and the Hatch act by the sale of Democratic campaign books

Something Expected

The corporate advertisements in these campaign books were in many instances obtained from the corporations because such corporations either hoped to escape punishment from the federal government or receive reward from it

It is a step forward that this method of raising campaign funds has been eliminated Even Boss Flynn (Edward J Flynn new Democratic chairman) certainly ought to now understand that there is a limit to political ruthlessness

The Republican nominee issued his statement in response to reporters questions about the ruling of Attorney General Jackson that the justice department would not permit the sale of Democratic campaign books by state or local party organizations and Hatch's declaration that purchasers of the books would be liable to prosecution

In New York Flynn said 'the advertising contracts to which he refers were all entered into long before the Hatch bill became a law No advertisements are now or will be solicited • • • There never was any intention of placing the book on sale It will go to 100 000 or more Democratic speakers and workers

Peculiar Answer

Willkie also was asked to comment on a statement by Oliver A Quayle Jr treasurer of the Democratic national committee that

Yield of Parking Meters Continues Above Estimates

Far exceeding previous estimates Marion's 103 parking meters took in $151 48 during the four-day period ending Saturday, City Auditor Elmer Shaw reported yesterday

This amount and the $94 01 received in a collection earlier last week brought receipts for the first week the meters were in operation to $245 49 These figures indicate that each meter took in an average of 35 cents a day ouring the first week whereas city officials had estimated receipts would average between 20 and 25 cents a day per meter during the first few weeks

Expect Increases

Following tabulation of the Saturday collection several officials expressed the opin on the upward trend will continue with receipts increasing steadily as motorists become accustomed to operating the meters Although the nickels were not counted until yesterday the collection was made early Saturday afternoon and does not include the bulk of the Saturday receipts

Included in the amount removed from the meters Saturday were 18 pennies which motorists apparently dropped into the meters under the illusion they would operate the devices Mr Shaw reported Four slugs also were found

Two Yield $2 10 Each

As in the first collection the greatest number of nickels were removed from meters on the south side of West Center street between Main and Prospect streets where two adjoining meters yielded $2 10 each the highest for the collection period The smallest receipts came from the west side of North Main street between Center and Mill streets and one of these meters took in only 90 cents the lowest figure for the collection, tabulations made by Mr Shaw disclose

With these exceptions however there was little variation in the amounts received from the meters.

SYCAMORE Aug 13—Nine-year-old William Louis Tone of Columbus was accidentally drowned while wading in the Sycamore creek at the community park here yesterday afternoon

William a son of Mr and Mrs Robert E Tone of Columbus former Wyandot county residents had been visiting his grandmother Mrs Flossie Tone who lives a short distance from the park Early yesterday afternoon he accompanied a group of youngsters to the creek and went wading After leaving his companions he returned to his grandmother's home and about 3 o'clock returned to the creek which has been dammed up to form a swimming pool at the park

Makes Second Trip

His friends who had been with him earlier in the day said they did not see him on his second trip to the creek but that about 4 30 they discovered his clothes hanging in the park bathhouse Unable to locate William they summoned Mrs Tone and older boys and started searching for the body in the water

About 5 30 the body was discovered by Ray Shaffer 13 in about three feet of water Dr F M Smith of Sycamore and two members of the searching party administered artificial respiration for more than two hours but were unable to revive him Officials conducting an investigation said that William was unable to swim and apparently either waded out too far into the creek or suffered cramps and fell into the water

SIGNS POINT TO IMMINENCE OF LAND ASSAULT

Nazis Follow Familiar Tactics, Try To "Soften" Resistance in Advance.

By LOUIS P LOCHNER
(Associated Press Berlin Chief)

BERLIN Aug 13—All signs pointed today to an early zero hour for a Nazi offensive against England with its climax an attempt to land German troops on the British Isles

To anybody who observed German tactics in Poland Norway and western Europe it is perfectly clear that Germany is again trying to bring maximum destruction to railways airports naval harbors industrial plants and gasoline tanks before ordering her troops to move

In the case of England it is of further prime importance to have coastal batteries silenced Only after this has been largely achieved is the hazardous task of landing troops likely to be tackled

Say British Flee

Declaring that since yesterday the British airforce fliers were seeking to avoid fights informed German sources said the Nazi tactics now are to force them into combat or risk having their airports hangars and shops destroyed and planes demolished on the ground

The latest advices of DNB official German news agency, added the East Church airport to the day's German objectives Six hangars, according to DNB were smashed completely, crews' barracks set afire, anti-aircraft batteries silenced, gasoline tanks ignited by heavy bomb hits, 10 Spitfires destroyed on the ground and 12 barrage balloons shot down

Earlier in the day it had been announced that air battles were waging over Portsmouth Aldershot and other points over the English channel and elsewhere as the Germans sought to bomb military targets

The German wireless said British losses today alone were 69 against only seven for Germany

In the British losses were 16 planes said to have been shot down in two attacks on the fortified town of Aalborg Denmark Only seven raiders escaped, the radio said Others were listed as destroyed in the assault of England

In a German bomber raid on the harbor of Walsend between Newcastle and South Shields DNB said numerous high explosive and incendiary bombs caused widespread fires in storehouses and warehouses Five minutes after the missiles fell the agency said a terrific detonation was heard

Defenses Fall

British chasers and anti-aircraft batteries trying to repel the before-dawn Nazi raiders were unable to prevent the attack or even inflict damage, DNB declared

It said fierce air battles, developing over the channel and

GERMAN AIR FLEET LASHES 200 MILES OF CHANNEL FRONT

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug 13—A swarm of German raiders returned to the attack on 200 miles of English channel coast late this afternoon, fighting a large scale combat with defending planes behind low hanging clouds

The thunder of scores of motors and the crashes of several planes told the story to ground observers, although the clouds hid most of the fighting

It was the climax to the third successive day of power assault, and again today—as on Sunday and Monday—the Nazis were using from 400 to 600 planes From Berlin and neutral Switzerland too came predictions that the zero hour for actual invasion was approaching

At one southwest port early this evening, a flaming fighter spiraled into the sea at a village six miles away, a German bomber crashed with two dead and one captured

Air raid warnings were in effect over a wide area, embracing inland gunnery stations—one of them within half a mile of where a big Dornier bomber crashed this morning with bomb racks still half full

These mobile batteries and troop concentrations are scattered from coast to several miles inland On nearby roads new type barricades designed to block invaders and yet to permit swift movement of defending troops are being erected

Hit Near and Far

The Germans by British admission, drove their strongest waves today across an 80-mile pathway from the Thames estuary to the Sussex coast of southern England but they struck at distant objectives too

The British air ministry in a mid-afternoon communique counted 10 German bombers and one fighter shot down for sure and asserted "no military damage was done" Unofficially the British count of planes shot down today was at least 31

The official British account of today's raids was guarded

It did however concede that the main attack was lengthened to take in the bombing of both seaside towns and country districts in Hampshire as well as the stretch from Sussex to the Thames (Thus Portsmouth great naval base sheltered by both the Sussex and Hampshire coasts obviously was again a principal target)

"A few casualties some fatal" were officially admitted

The authorized accounts however stressed the damage done by the British Spitfire and Hurricane fighter defenders

Chase Foe Back

One squadron of Spitfires it was stated, chased a large formation of Dornier bombers across the channel toward France and "damaged at least five" Another Spitfire group engaged more than 30 Dorniers—five miles above the Kentish coast,

A British flying officer was declared to have attacked four German bombers "one after the other, silencing the rear gunners in two of them and [illegible] [illegible] closely [illegible] [illegible] this [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible]

til congress shall have declared that a state of war exists before men are actually compelled to join the army The Burke-Wadsworth bill on the other hand provides that when men have been registered and classified they may be compelled to join the army only when congress shall hereafter appropriate funds specifically for such purpose

Thus under the minority proposal no one may be conscripted unless congress declares war under the majority proposal no one may be conscripted even after the enactment of the bill except as congress specifically votes money to conscript a definite number of men In both cases the authority to conscript is still reserved to the congress under the majority plan because an appropriation is required and under the minority plan because a declaration of war is required It is false therefore to assert that congress delegates any kind of dictatorial powers to the Executive under either plan The control of conscription under both plans remains firmly in congress But under both plans the right to conscript is established In principle the machinery of conscription is established in fact and the enforcement of conscription is made to depend not on any question of principle but solely on whether it is feasible to recruit enough men quickly enough by voluntary enlistment

STATE LIQUOR STORES BOOM

Ohio Monopoly Had Biggest Year in 1939, Yearly Report Shows.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Aug 13 — Ohio's liquor monopoly business hit an all-time high last year.

Director Jacob B Taylor informed Gov Bricker in an annual report today that the department earned a net profit of $8,234,003 an increase of $1,658 399 over 1938 and $135 103 above 1937, the previous record high

The profit was exclusive of $7,482 744 collected in gallonage taxes In all, the liquor department turned over earnings of $15 716 747 to the general revenue fund

There were three contributing factors for the increase, Taylor explained a boost of 6 24 per cent in sales volume a savings of 20 14 per cent in operating expense and an increase of 47 49 per cent in miscellaneous revenues

In addition to its earnings, the department collected and distributed without deduction a total of $5 751 449 in permits fees to the revenue funds of the various political subdivisions

Total 1939 revenue amounted to $31 531 990, bringing to $152-841 697 money produced by the liquor department since creation of the monopoly system in 1933 Included in the 1939 total revenue was $10 083 794 collected as excises on beer, malt and wort

"This" the report commented is an enormous sum to collect from a single general source and when it is considered that almost one-half of this revenue was produced by the state store system the importance of the monopoly in terms of dollars and cents can be realized * * * The state store system not only represents the most complete control over the distribution of packaged liquor and the most orderly means of effecting this distribution, but also produces the maximum amount of revenue

The department, which began with three mills opened in Columbus April 7 1934 had 262 outlets at the end of 1939, five less than at the close of the preceding year Of these, 204 were state stores and 58 were agencies situated in localities too small to maintain profitably a regulation store

COLUMBUS O Aug 13— Ohio is a bourbon state The annual report of the liquor department released today, said "rye whisky will not sell in any abundance"

UPPER SANDUSKY SUED BY FORMER MARIONITE

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Aug. 13—Boyd Caylor, about 40, a former resident of Marion, has filed suit in common pleas court here seeking $3,500 damages from the village of Upper Sandusky and Marshal Adolph Kirchner on grounds of assault and battery and false imprisonment.

He contends that he suffered "embarrassment" as the result of being arrested June 30 by Marshal Kirchner. The incident occurred when Mr. Caylor went to the village dumping grounds to dispose of some trash, according to his petition.

Marshal Kirchner placed him under arrest without sufficient reason after they engaged in a brief conversation, the plaintiff charges. He was locked in the Upper Sandusky jail three hours and no charge was filed against him, he avers.

Mr. Caylor is represented by the Marion firm of Martin & Reed.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

An Indignant Mother-in-Law Orders the Defenders to Remove Ladders from Outside Her Windows.

"IT'S LIKE THIS, Katrina," Lillian explained at my halting question. "The physical labor of getting the library and the nursery fitted up as bedrooms before darkness comes is going to be terrific, and unless you and I lend a hand Madge and Katie will have it all to do, as the men are all busy outside with the job of putting bars on all the windows. So I thought—"

"Don't think any more!" Katherine advised with a smile. "Just go over and enlist Mother Graham's services, and I'll proceed to make the nursery safe for grandmothers if not for democracy."

"I'll help you," Lillian volunteered promptly. "Madge's mother-in-law will probably fall on her neck in ecstatic gratitude for letting her have her grandchildren to herself for an afternoon, but, on the other hand, she may have some crochet in her darling old noddle which will have to be ironed out—don't you love my mixed metaphors — and I'm perfectly willing to let Madge have the job to herself—that's how unselfish I am."

Shares Joke

"I share your altruism," Katherine said smiling, and I threw up her hand in salute as I turned to leave the room.

"Good hunting darling," she called after me, and I felt that I needed the encouraging salute when, as I neared my mother-in-law's door, it opened, and she appeared on the threshold, with her head held so majestically high, and her face so forbidding that my mental barometer traveled swiftly downward.

She was in one of her most difficult moods, and I knew that I must postpone even so alluring a proposition as I was bringing her until she should have had an opportunity to blow off steam about whatever it was that was irritating her.

A gleam of satisfaction which I recognized appeared in her eyes as she saw me. She is exceedingly fond of me, as her actions have proved many times since the first stormy years of my marriage with her son when she and I discovered that we could be loving friends instead of "In-laws". But I am her favorite whipping-boy, nevertheless, and I knew that she was especially glad to find me at hand to receive her outburst.

Starts Tirade

"Margaret!" she began, in her stateliest manner and most formal tones, "will you be good enough to inform me as to what is the meaning of those men putting ladders up to my windows? Fortunately, I happened to be fully dressed when they appeared. But I might have been horribly embarrassed. You know my windows overlook the gardens, and I never think of pulling down my blinds except at night. It never has been necessary. I do not know what is the reason for this sudden and ridiculous activity, but I certainly do think you could have had the courtesy to let me know about it before I was startled almost out of my wits by the heads of those men appearing at my windows."

She took a deep breath — she needed it—but I knew better than to interrupt her. She had only just started her tirade, and if she were permitted free scope for her talents, she might talk herself into good humor again.

"You needn't stand there looking so innocent, and pretending you don't know anything about it," she went on, "for I have it on the best authority that you are perfectly familiar with the situation. Of course, as soon as I saw the men at the windows, I went directly over and ordered them down. I must do them the justice to say they were perfectly respectful, more so than my own son, but they would not stop their work, said they couldn't, that they were under orders from Mr. Graham and Mr. Underwood. I saw Richard down in the yard giving directions to some men, and I called to him and asked him the reason for this outrageous treatment of me. And he had the audacity to tell me that he hadn't a second to talk to me, but that you knew all about it, and would explain everything to me. So I went in search of you, and fortunately found you on my own threshold. I can only trust that you were coming of your own free will to make me an explanation of this outrageous occurrence."

$100 000 OHIO FIRE

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O Aug 13—Palmer Donavin Manufacturing Co executives estimated at $100 000 today damage caused by a blaze that destroyed a two-story brick structure and its contents The fire broke out after employes left the plant yesterday

along the coast cost the British a great number of chasers as German fliers succeeded in breaking through aerial defenses to bomb previously designated targets

The attack destroyed planes on runways and hangars at an airport at Portsmouth DNB said adding that fires were observed in the port after both medium weight and heavy bombs had been rained on it

British anti aircraft batteries and fighters failed to inflict any damage on the German bombers or hamper their operations the news agency said

Two Boats Sunk

Meanwhile DNB said Nazi planes reconnoitering the channel sank two British patrol boats off Godwin sands west of Deal

In its reports on activity today DNB said the Germans downed 14 British planes and lost five in air battles over Eastchurch on the Thames Portsmouth and Aldershot.

Bombing attacks severely damaged airports at these points starting fires and wrecking uncounted planes on the ground the news agency declared

The high command reiterating the DNB reports, added that night-raiding German planes had attacked shipping at Swansea and Cardiff both in Wales and also anti-aircraft and searchlight batteries at Plymouth and Humber mouth

Its communique also reported a dive-bomber attack on a strongly protected convoy and said that despite hectic defense by chasers and anti aircraft, two merchantmen totaling 5 500 tons were sunk

Claim Air Mastery

Three days of concentrated assault have given Germany air mastery over the English channel made the sea itself uncomfortably hot for the British navy and paved the way for wider attacks from which not even London' will be safe Nazis declared today

(The British were told by the London press that the battle of Britain had begun)

Only adverse weather conditions these sources asserted can prevent continuation on an increasingly grand scale of massed aerial raids which were begun last Thursday and repeated Sunday and Monday in an apparently systematic attempt to soften up England's south coast.

In those three days the Germans said 231 British planes were destroyed—either in the air or on the ground—while only 61 of their own aircraft failed to return safely

(The British said 186 German planes had been shot down in the same period and put their own losses at 65 planes

Portsmouth Target

The chief objective in yesterday's raids apparently was the great seaport of Portsmouth which the authoritative commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland described as the chief southern base for the British fleet, with facilities for construction and repair of the largest war vessels.

Raiders returning from repeated assaults on this base reported dock facilities in ruins and great fires raging along the waterfront.

Military commentators insisted Germany had the initiative in the rapidly developing war with England and that it would carry on the conflict on its own schedule.

Two persons died at Savannah Ga as the storm swept that city One CCC boy was missing on Huntington island, near Charleston S C

Gov Burnet R Maybank of South Carolina said Beaufort county appeared to have been hardest hit At least 200 homes were destroyed in the county and many others damaged Maybank said Red Cross aid chlorine and food was needed for storm refugees in that area

The city of Beaufort and Parris island a marine base were severely damaged the governor reported

ITALY NEARS CRISIS IN BALKAN DEATHS

Fascist Press Quarrels with Yugoslavia and Greece.

By The Associated Press

ROME Aug 13—Friction between Italy and Yugoslavia was reported by the Fascist press today as Italian Greek tension apparently moved toward a crisis

The Yugoslav difficulty according to the newspaper La Tribuna was over the killing of a Fascist in the Italian town of Zara on the Yugoslav coast The Zara populace was said to be aroused

Fascist Leonardo Ciurcovich the dispatch said was killed when he objected to a stranger singing a Slav song on a Zara street

Virginio Gayda Fascist editor who often reflects official opinion accused Greece today of seeking to seize part of Italian held Albania

The accusation was contained in Gayda's rejection of a Greek version of the slaying and the Greek frontier of an Albanian Daut Hoggia

(It was reported without confirmation in Athens that the Italian government had presented a note to Greece)

Invasion of England Seen at Hand

air battles over the British coast showed 62 German planes downed 36 fighters and 26 bombers—had been admitted (The German tally acknowledged only 24 losses and claimed destruction of 89 British planes)

500 to 600 In Raid

Between 500 and 600 German planes participated in the raids, the spokesman said

Germany also lost more than 100 trained airmen in the fighting yesterday and only 12 of our own pilots did not return the air ministry news service asserted

The censored British press told Britons that the long threatened German blitzkrieg had now been launched and that the battle of Britain finally is on The press warned that these concentrated air attacks might be followed next by an attempt at actual invasion

As fast as the German planes came British Spitfire and Hurricane fighters rose to meet them Most of the battles were fought above the clouds

Streets of southeastern towns were reported to be strewn with spent machine gun bullets from battles raging high overhead

First reports listed 10 known dead as a result of the morning's bombings and several houses demolished Soldiers and civilians alike were dying under the hail of tons of bombs

Use Best Pilots

Apparently the Germans were putting their best pilots into the mass raids as captured airmen seemed better trained more experienced and physically superior to those taken previously Their ages ranged from about 22 to 24

Survivors of one downed Nazi party today included a young count

Hector C Bywater noted British naval expert discussed German use of guns across the channel in today's News Chronicle declaring that aerial spotting would be necessary for accurate firing at such a distance

(The British censor after a long delay permitted the paragraph on the southeast town explosions to pass without amplification The appearance of the Bywater discourse on cross channel bombardment today may have been significant

(It is only 22 miles from Calais German held port on the continent to Dover southeast English port and many guns can shoot that distance The Germans have claimed to possess weapons capable of shooting five times the distance Long range cross channel bombardment has been considered a definite possibility ever since the Germans first envisioned attack on Britain Their famed long-range bombardment of Paris during the World war from the forest of Coucy was from a distance of 76 miles London is about 90 miles from possible emplacements on the continent)

Worse Is Coming

'We must be prepared for bigger raids yet,' said the Laborite Daily Herald and their extensior to other parts of the country

The calmness and fortitude with which the people from the coast towns are going about their business must be as infuriating to Hitler as are the courage and cleverness of our flying men

Yesterday's mass raids aimed all over the country but directed chiefly at Portsmouth Southampton and Dover were followed up by thrusts through the dark hours of this morning which inflicted a number of casualties in southwest England and Wales

Hitler's warplanes pressed their attacks by moonlight also in the southeast northeast and northwest coastal districts of England

Gunfire from ground batteries repeatedly drove off raiders appearing over a wide area of Wales early today Bombs dropping on a coastal town caused a number of casualties and damaged houses

In the southwest coastal area bombs crashed in two streets in a thickly populated district Explosions demolished some homes started a fire and caused several casualties

German losses for the first five days of this most furious aerial warfare are set here at 180 planes as against British losses of 57 (The German figures for this period were 231 British planes destroyed and 61 German)

NEW YORK Aug 13 — Capt Torkild Rieber stocky $100 000 a-year chairman of the Texas Corp, has ended a 35 year career with the international oil firm the result of recent disclosures of his association with a German commercial emissary to the United States

The 58 year old Norwegian born oil executive who went to sea at 14 and became a tanker skipper at 21 explained after a seven hour meeting of the board of directors yesterday he had submitted his resignation because of certain publicity detrimental to the Texas Corp in connection with reports of the activities of Dr Gerhard Westrick commercial counselor of the German embassy

As a result of the revelations concerning Westrick Rieber acknowledged helping the Nazi representative to get a driver's license and offering him the use of a company car

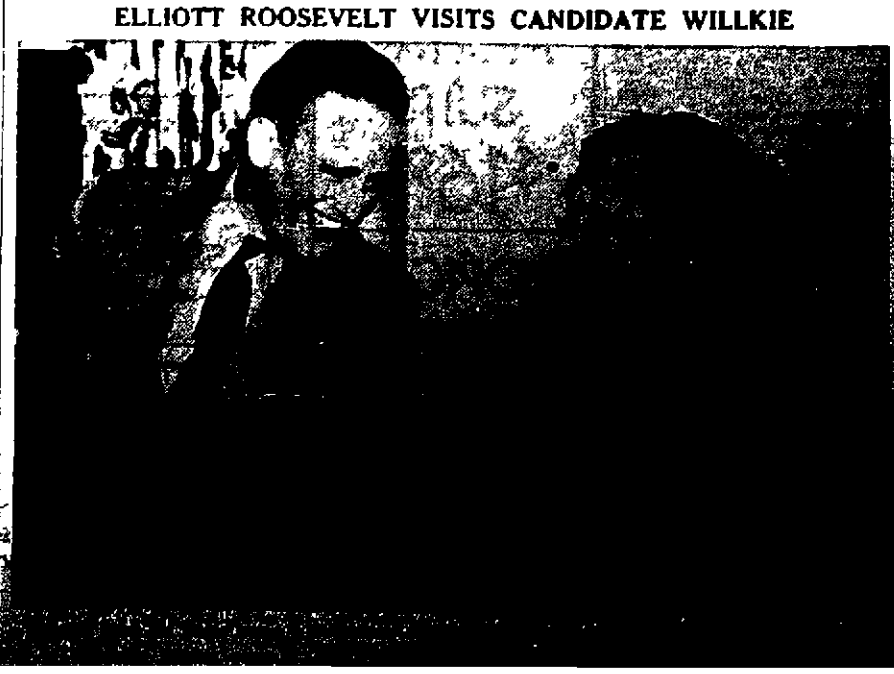
ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT VISITS CANDIDATE WILLKIE



Largest Week-Day Crowd Sees Feller Win 20th To Put Tribe On T

Indians Tame Tigers, 8-5; Reds Drop 4-2 Decision to Pirates.

The Cleveland Indians whacked out 12-hits, including three homers, to hand the master Bobby Feller his 20th victory of the year and take undisputed possession of first place in the American league with an 8-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers The win broke a first place tie, moving the Indians a full game ahead of Detroit

Home runs by Hal Trosky, Beau Bell and Roy Weatherly paced the Tribal attack. Two of the circuit smashes —those by Trosky and Weatherly—came in the first inning and routed Detroit's young Hal Newhouser from the mound

Hits 21st Homer

Trosky s homer, his 21st drove in Ben Chapman who had walked

Clay Smith who replaced Newhouser in the first yielded eight of the Indians safe blows but his successors—Tom Seats and Freddy Hutchinson—shut them out in the seventh and eighth

Feller limiting the Tigers to seven hits and fanning seven to raise his season s strikeout total to 197 had trouble in only one inning the seventh He walked three men in a row two of them scoring on a double and the third crossing the plate on an infield out.

A crowd of 23 720 saw the game —one of the biggest week-day gatherings in Cleveland history

Al Lopez Pittsburgh Pirate mates call him Winning Pitcher Al' and they point to him as the sparkplug in baseball s most sensational winning drive

From Last to 4th

The Bucs who have known the dregs of last place but are now only a game and a half behind the third place Giants were paced to their twentieth win in their last 25 starts last night by Lopez—a 4 2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds and Bucky Walters

The experts digging into the Pirate performance have come up with this excellent answer to the whys and wherefores of that success Its Lopezs handling of the pitchers—Young Ken Heintzelman John Danning Dick Lanahan and Rip Sewell—that has made the Bucs the hottest club in the big leagues

Lopez modestly credits the team s fielding as the reason for the upswing Manager Frankie Frisch says its because the club is hustling and getting the breaks But the ball players who ought to know thank Al

For five innings last night neither team scored And not until the sixth when each pushed over a run did either the Pirates or the Reds have more than one man on base in any inning

Lopez Leads Attack

Lonnie Frey doubled and counted on Frank McCormick s single in the sixth Al Lopez scored the first Pirate run in the same round after getting a single He moved around on Butcher s safety and crossed the plate on Paul Waner s hit

The break came in the seventh when Elbie Fletcher s long fly fell into the rightfield crowd for a ground-rule double and he romped home on Frank Gustine s single Lopez the Pirate sparkplug singled Gustine home

It was the Reds third straight defeat

In the only other major league game Jimmy Debb doubled in the ninth to score Bob Kennedy and give the Chicago White Sox a 6-5 victory over the St Louis Browns in a night game in St Louis The Sox left 17 men stranded one short of the league record

Hambletonian Is Wide Open Race

By The Associated Press

GOSHEN N Y—The widest open race since 1934 and the richest purse in eight years marks the 14th renewal of the $42 000 Hambletonian stake for 3-year old trotters With the invincible Peter Astra not competing even Walter Cox veteran of 50 Grand Circuit campaigns who did not earn his nickname of 'Long Shot for nothing admits that he can t come close to picking the winner of the sulky derby

Of the five trotters which are nearly equally favored now for the Aug 14 event four are colts and one a gelding Six fillies have won the 14 Hambletonians trotted to date but no member of the so called weaker sex is touted to cop one approximate $22 000 winners purse If a gelding wins the coveted honor he will be only the second to turn that trick, since Greyhound is now the only gelding to race out in front

After two years of bad luck with what looked like sure-fire winners Dunbar W Bostwick Old Westbury L I hopes that his Kuno bay colt by Guy Day, will live up to his winter book odds of 2 to 1 Fastest two-year-old of 1939 Kuno hit a bad slump early in the season but is now highly regarded by rival horsemen Bostwick hopes to pilot his entry in person as the only amateur reinsman in the event

KUNO

Spencer Scott Looks Good

Next in line if you want to guess is Spencer Scott brown colt by Scotland owned by C W Phellis Greenwich Conn This colt has won at Indianapolis and Toledo in Grand Circuit previews to the Hambletonian and is trained and driven by Fred Egan Lexington Ky who has never won the classic since it was launched in 1926

Remus largest of the Hambletonian candidates at 17 2 hands has been finishing second to Spencer Scott when he won and was only a nose behind Kuno when Bostwick s colt won recently at Narragansett Park Remus a bay colt by Protector is owned by a triumvirate of horsemen in Harry Short Columbus O who trains and drives him Will K Dickerson Goshen N Y and Paul Bowser Boston Mass

Milestone the only gelding

holds the record for the fastest half mile ever raced by a gelding over a twice-around track at 58¼ seconds Milestone is owned by Joseph A Neville Delaware O, and is driven by Wayne Smart also of Delaware The gelding is by Volomite

Parshall Driving Again

Gentleman Jim bay colt by Lord Jim is another Buckeye State entry owned by John F Davis Toledo and driven by Doc H M Parshall Urbana O If this colt earns top honors he will be the first one ever to win who has a sire that also won the Hambletonian Lord Jim was victorious in 1934 with Parshall driving Parshall won last year with Peter Astra

Will Bob Win 30? Scribe Says Maybe

By LARRY HAUCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

CLEVELAND Aug 13—Albert my scratch paper please

This is the story of how many games Bob Feller is going to win this season

Cleveland s ace fireballer who tallied his 20th victory yesterday in pitching the Indians into first place won t predict He says mathematics and percentages will supply the answer

About the pennant race Bob is more definite He believes the American league chase a Cleveland Detroit affair with Boston an outside possibility that the Indians will win and meet Cincinnati in in All Ohio world series and that the New York Yankees are through for the season

Noting the Indians have 45 more games to play, Feller has added this

If I start 12 games I ought to win eight of them

So much depends on how the team happens to be hitting on the days I pitch Bob added My arm feels fine My most serious physical trouble of the season came yesterday—I had a stiff neck because I forgot to turn off the air conditioning on the train from St Louis

In this sketch drive relief assignments will affect the number of games I start I can t go out on a limb

All right Albert more paper and the records

Feller now has only six defeats against his 20 victories

On this date last year his won and lost record was 17 6 He finished with 24 9 On that basis he should win 27

In 1938 he showed 12 6 on Aug 13 and finished with 17-11 That pace would mean 25

If Bob continues his present rate of inning and starts 12 more games—and open dates in September make the dozen figure a pretty reliable guess—he would win 9½ games That would make 29½

So if Feller wants to let mathematics answer for him the 1940 pace figures say he ll be just an eyelash from the much coveted 30-victory mark when the curtain goes down

CONN-PASTOR FIGHT MAY GO 15 ROUNDS TO SPLIT DECISION

Experts Mystified Because Pastor Should Have Edge and Odds Favor Foe.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK Aug 13—Possibly the safest prediction that can be made about tonights fight between Bob Pastor and Billy Conn at the Polo Grounds is that it will go 15 fast rounds to a split decision with the manager of the losing gladiator yelling murder at the verdict

A fight between two such clever but light-hitting men usually ends that way barring a bad cut that forces the referee to stop it Seldom—around here at least—do the two judges and the referee agree on the winner and the divergences of opinion between these supposed experts sometimes is amazing

So it is a reasonable expectation that after the last licks has been hit tonight and the slips have been collected and the winners hand raised there will be some yelling and gesticulating either by Jimmy Johnston who manages Pastor or by Johnny Ray who thinks his boy Conn is the coming heavyweight champion

Because neither fighter is a knocker outer the match has not created a great deal of interest and might not draw more than $50 000 at the gate

It still is a mystery to at least one impartial observer why Conn has been a favorite ever since the articles were signed By every yardstick in common use—experience weight defensive ability and fire power—Pastor appears to have a distinct edge

Savich Whips Trout in M Event, Has Help of Tala

Crowd's Hero Floored by Talaber, Who S Arbiter When Referee Is Hurt.

Danny Sav rough Utah homore who played a return engagement on the Marion mat last night for his first appearance here in more than a year, emerged the victor over fast-stepping Dick Trout of Los Angeles in one of the most unusual finishes ever seen on a local wrestling bout

Danny won the featured scrap in spectacular heads but his second was the direct result of an aid from Referee Talaber the Chicago mat man who was defeated in the preceding semi-final match Talaber got mixed up in the melee when he took over the judging after Referee Cleo Kauffman was disabled

Battle Is Slugfest

But to start at the beginning Savich grabbed off first fall honors in 10 minutes when he forced Trout to concede the round with a step over toe hold It was a slugfest all of the way with Savich resorting to roughneck tactics and getting away with it by disregarding the referees feeble efforts to keep the match on the up and up

The tough Ute used the same line of attack when he returned for the second and Trout apparently convinced he wasn t going to get any help from the referee decided to take things into his own hands He clamped a tortuous grip on Savich s left arm and traded blows in a duel of haymakers Trout used a ripsnorting shoulder dive to spill Savich and on one of his barrages he accidentally upset the referee

Kauffman suffered a painful knee injury in the fall and lay prone on the mat as Trout went about the grim business of tearing Savich apart Spectators rushed to the ringside to watch the proceedings and at someone s suggestion Talaber crawled through the strands to fill Kauffman s role as referee At the moment Trout had Savich wound into the ropes and was mowing him down to pint size

Talaber Punches Back

Talaber ripped the tanglers apart and it was an easy matter for Trout to spill his groggy foe He hopped on Savich s prostrate form but instead of trying for the fall he continued to apply a choke hold that might have put the Utah husky out permanently Again Talaber separated them, to all of which Trout took offense Trout smacked the would-be referee and was felled by Talaber s return blow

That was the blow that decided the match As Trout sank to the canvas Savich piled in to score the second straight fall and walk off a victor an unsteady and battered one but still a victor

Newcomer Tex Riley of Amarillo Tex got the nod over the aforementioned Talaber in the 45 minute semi final Talaber copped the first fall in minutes with a shoulder p lowing a series of head Riley evened the score b the second in 12 minute thunderbolt shoulder backbreaker over his Riley was winning with hold in the third but Limit expired just before gave up Referee K however raised Riley s victory giving him the decision

Jimmy Heffner of Tex used a double re hold to whip Bull M New York City in 14 m the scheduled 20-minute

Final Plans Made for Construction of Lincoln Park Ball Field Fence

Final plans for constructing a fence around the ball field at Lincoln park were made Monday night at a joint meeting of the Marion Softball commission the city park board and representatives of semi-pro baseball teams

A committee composed of William Feter Marion Hinklin and William R Martin was appointed to work out details for the project W P Cass president of the city park board will also serve on the committee

Arrangements were made to begin work on the fence within a few days and if possible to have it completed for the Little World series early in September Plans also were discussed for a series of Sunday benefit baseball games the proceeds from which would be placed in the fence fund

To Creosote Lumber

The first step in the construction program will be creosoting of all the lumber to be used which will be done at the Baker Wood Preserving Co When the lumber is prepared a group of 10 to 15 NYA youths will be assigned to the fence project until the work is finished

A decision to have all the lumber creosoted was made to increase the durability of the fence and to remove the necessity of painting it Several other details of construction planned to increase the permanency of the fence also were approved at the meeting including the use of bolts in fastening down the largest timbers and the use of special nails to fasten the smaller boards

The Lincoln park fence is one of three projects being carried on here this summer by the national youth administration under the sponsorship of the city park board Tennis courts were constructed at Lincoln park earlier in the summer and an extensive improvement project is now under way at the McKinley park lake For all the projects the national youth administration supplies the labor needed and the park board has guaranteed to furnish the necessary materials and supervision

Discuss Girls League

Another phase of Marion's ball activities discussed at the meeting was the possibility of promoting girls softball teams If sufficient interest is shown leagues for girls teams probably will be formed next spring

In addition to representatives of ball groups and the park board those attending the meeting included F M Brabson of the Avenue Lumber & Supply Co F W Smith of the Baker Wood Preserving Co and Lawrence Roesner Marion county NYA director

LIONS CLUB HEARS POLITICAL WRITER

Party Conventions Reviewed by Karl B. Pauly.

"Politics, 1940 Brand," was the topic of Karl P Pauly of Columbus, columnist for the Ohio State Journal, who reviewed the recent Republican and Democratic national conventions yesterday at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Lions club at Hotel Harding

Dr G W Pfleiderer introduced Mr Pauly who traced the rise of Wendell Willkie as an obscure member of the Republican convention to the presidential nominee 'The Republican convention was peculiar in that Willkie was not favored by the candidates until late in the convention ' Mr Pauly said Willkie not being an organization man he continued, did not figure heavily in the primary campaigning and it was Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Sen Robert A Taft of Ohio who had received the delegates pledge of support

Mr Pauly attributed Willkie's nomination to the following four factors (1) this campaign was the most perfectly timed and successful one from a standpoint of publicity that this country has ever witnessed There was an overwhelming demand for Willkie and delegates were deluged with a shower of telegrams demanding Willkie (2) the galleries were unanimously in favor of Willkie and doubtlessly influenced the delegates although at first Taft and Dewey led in the balloting (3) Willkie's campaign managers were active to the last ballot having prominent persons wiring delegates in Willkie's behalf (4) finally the other candidates didn't have their backers firmly in line where they could count on their support

In discussing the Democratic renomination of President Roosevelt he pointed out that party leaders were working with the President and that the other candidates did not have real leaders behind them

Relief Action Up

When a resolution clearing the way for issuance of $40,000 in relief bonds was brought before council, two councilmen spoke against using this source of revenue for relief purposes Councilman Welcome Cass asserted that by avoiding the issuance of bonds the city had been able to reduce its debt nearly 50 per cent in five years He said he felt relief should be on a cash basis but pointed to the defeat of the relief levy as the citizens answer to council's pay as you go policy In view of the defeat of the levy council has no choice but to issue the bonds he remarked Councilman Biggert commented he didn't think issuing bonds is the right way to raise relief funds but wouldn't vote against the plan

The resolution passed unanimously, authorizes the mayor to seek authority of the state tax commission for permission to issue $40 000 in relief bonds against anticipated collections of delinquent taxes The resolution points out that the relief funds was $13,500 in the red as of July 1 and that the current revenues of the city are such that it is impossible for the city to pay relief costs without shutting down normal operations

A petition signed by 304 persons most of them Marion Steam Shovel Co employes asked council for a traffic light at the point where Davids, Columbia and Florence streets intersect L R Norton and L C Pletcher two shovel company workers present to speak in favor of the petition said a traffic hazard exists at the intersection at 11 30 a m and 4 30 p m daily when large numbers of shovel employes are leaving the plant by way of the southwest gate Council President Stief referred the petition to the police committee

Rental Authorized

An ordinance authorizing Safety-Service Director Clyde C Caldwell to lease an apartment for Miss Margaret Parker City hospital superintendent was also adopted The ordinance provides for monthly rental payments of $32 50 for June July August and $37 50 a month for the remaining months of the year Mayor Snure informed councilmen prior to the meeting that the two additional rooms made available at the hospital by the superintendents moving to quarters away from the hospital are expected to yield about $1 200 a year from patients

The city budget for 1941 previously sent to council and filed with the city auditor for 10 days public inspection was given formal public hearing and then approved No one voiced any objections to the budget

An ordinance supplementing one passed at a previous meeting authorized Safety-Service Director Caldwell to enter into a contract for the purchase of new fire hose Officials said the ordinance adopted last night was largely an amendment to the one previously passed

Council President Stief reported he had received a request that Henry street be made a stop street at Congress street He referred the request to the police committee

Street Light

A petition to relocate a street light on Edwards street and install one additional light was referred to the street lighting committee

A petition for construction of a curb and gutter on Darius street was referred to the street and alley committee The committee had reported the petition lacked sufficient signatures and that the petition had been returned to the signers Later the signers presented it again asking for the improvement over a shorter section of the street than was sought in the original petition Mr Stief explained

Councilmen reported they had been asked by Police Capt Ora DeWees to repair damage in the basement of his Orchard street home caused by the blow-up of a sewer line under the basement floor The sewer committee investigating the damage asked to have more time to make its study

Walter D Moore informed council he is acting as attorney for a group of Marion residents opposed to the proposed sewer rental fee ordinance awaiting action of council He asked that he be given a hearing before final action is taken on the measure

Details of Plan

In offering his conscription substitute Taft said it provided a comprehensive plan for training the youth of the nation without disturbing their schooling or forcing them from their jobs through the establishment of a separate army training corps and the encouragement of three-to four-year high school and college military courses.

The Ohioan said it would be putting the cart before the horse' to enact the Burke-Wadsworth bill which would require the registration of all men from 21 through 30 with the first 400 000 to be called for active training in October

His substitute proposed that men from 18 through 34 be enlisted voluntarily in this training corps for a years active service A limit of 1 500 000 was set on the number of men to be so trained and later transferred to the reserves. After the first year, only graduates of high schools or colleges, under 25 years old could enlist in the training corps

Increase in the army's basic pay from $21 to $30 a month also was proposed in the Taft measure but Senator Barkley said that Senator Sheppard (D Tex) floor manager of the Burke-Wadsworth measure already had agreed to accept a similar amendment to that bill

STOCK LEADERS DROP SHARPLY

Industrials Down 1 to More Than 5 Points on War News.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 13 — The stock market today suffered its worst tumble in three months as a revival of war fears caused traders to dump industrial leaders for losses of 1 to more than 5 points

Growing fierceness of the air battle over England indicated to Wall Street the zero hour in the Anglo-Nazi conflict might be at hand Business news and defense spending prospects while still hopeful were largely obscured by overseas bulletins

Bonds and commodities backed away with stocks

Financial share losers included U S Steel Bethlehem, General Motors Chrysler Douglas Aircraft Du Pont Westinghouse and International Paper preferred

Those who could shift their eyes from European dispatches noted that aggregate contracts actually awarded under the national armament program are approaching the $2 000 000,000 figure

WAR JITTERS SWEEP MARKET AT CHICAGO

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO Aug 13—An attack of war jitters swept the wheat pit today forcing prices at times two cents under previous closing levels and establishing new seasonal lows for all deliveries. Corn prices were steady

Development of a better demand attributed in part to milling interests near the close brought about a rally and prices recovered about one half of the extreme losses

Weakness in securities, influenced by reports that the Nazi attack on England was about to start in full force, touched off the early selling Stop loss orders were encountered before the trend was reversed

Wheat closed ⅝-1⅛ cent lower than Monday's final figures Sept 73⅜-½ Dec 74⅜-½ corn finished ⅛ lower to ¼ higher Sept 61-60⅞ Dec 56⅛-½ oats ⅛ up to ¾ off, rye ¾ 1 lower and provisions 25 30 cents a hundred weight lower

Casual Slaughters—

By VIRGINIA HANSON

CHAPTER 43
Bugle Calls

"AT FIRST I thought the Randly child meant an automobile horn," Gerald went on. "I took her to a big automobile accessory shop and she listened to every horn in the house. She thought it was great sport but I wasn't like any of those. The horn she heard was pretty and played tunes.

I began to see the possibilities. A school of music, an isolated teacher of wind instrument, or simply a crowded neighborhood where there was an amateur tooter. If I could find out what kind of horn it would narrow things down.

We went to a music store. She listened to saxophones, flutes, clarinets, bass horns, and shook her head. The baby has a good ear, fortunately for us. I was about to give up in despair when a boy scout came in with his scoutmaster to buy a bugle. The boy played mess call on one he was trying out, and it clicked. It was not only the right horn. It was the right tune. She told me in great excitement. Now could she have the ice cream cone? Imagine a millionaire's child who doesn't get enough ice cream cones, poor tot, isn't it?

I laughed, and after a moment he went on.

I'm tender about it, but while the scoutmaster took the bugle and played taps, she knew that one too. I'd about decided to make sure I asked the scoutmaster if he knew. The Roast Beef of Old England. He'd heard it a few times on an English boat, and said he'd have a try at it. He did—and the child said she didn't know that tune.

That clinched it as far as I was concerned. He played half a dozen calls of the American army, and she recognized them all. We had ice cream, and then I took her home, and was at some pains to discover that she had never had an army post, nor had any occasion to hear bugle calls. Then I asked her if correct me when the bugle was blowing, she had heard a big boom, or any part thereof, and she said yes.

Isn't it curious how people who have the use of their eyes forget the value of the four senses. Almost every kidnaped person is kept blindfolded, and he says they can't see, they hear things, their kidnapers never notice. There was the man who heard the mail plane going over every night—

He paused apologetically. "Sorry. I didn't mean to deliver a sermon. I just wanted to tell you what led me here. With the cooperation of the bonded workers and the knowledge and consent of Corps Area Headquarters, I've been trailing about for months, to post in this or that town, going into matters which did not seem promising, hoping to happen on something which did. I've ferreted out some interesting matters — here one caused with a grim chuckle — but nothing seemed pertinent until I ran into the stolen cars of Fort Michigan.

All Ears

And now I must go back a little and tell you another part of the story. I'm not tiring you?

I assured him hurriedly that he was not tiring me, that I was all ears, and please to go on.

"I don't want you to get the idea that I'm handling this case alone. This was simply my angle of it, and in a sense I played in luck. But the rest of the organization is behind me, and because they are—it's rather like beating a rabbit out of the brush. No not a rabbit. A tiger or a jackal. The beaters were all behind it, and it came my way.

"The ransom bills were old and unmarked. But their serial numbers were taken, naturally. And early in August they began to filter in. A tremendous amount of routine work was done tracking each one down, usually to a harmless shop or a prosperous law-abiding citizen who was at a loss to account for his possession of a ransom note. From all over Chicago they began to come in, and at last we began to get a picture of the method.

"A few of the possessors now claimed they had made change for a stranger in the elevated station. They differed in their descriptions of the stranger. One said it was a little old man, another an elderly woman. A third described a fat man, another a well dressed young woman. Allowing for the possibilities of disguise there must have been at least a couple, man and woman.

"The method was always the same. A prosperous-looking citizen—usually a man — would be accosted apologetically as he left the station—always a busy one—with the story that the ticket seller had refused a twenty dollar bill, and so on with the prosperous citizen digging down in the jeans and doing the favor.

Two of our most sartorially elegant operatives began to make the rounds. From station to station and back again, going out, coming in, watching for the little byplay. One rainy night about two weeks ago they came down the elevated steps together, and one of them went into a tobacconists to make a telephone call. The other was hovering in the doorway against the rain when he saw a little old man, his hat pulled over his eyes, come out of a drugstore halfway down the block and run spryly up the steps to the station.

On a hunch he was never able to explain, the operative followed. A train was just emptying, and as he reached the platform and the old man standing in the shadow of a stanchion was handing a bill to a well-dressed portly man. The operative pounced, but he wasn't quite quick enough. The fellow ducked into the milling crowd where it was impossible to shoot, and the thunder of the departing train covered the shout of warning. Halfway down the stairs he swung over the rail, dropped into the street, and ducking through the milling traffic, dived into an alley, and was gone.

But the operative saw him.

He did, yes. The stoop, the thick lensed glasses were obviously a disguise. But the operative thinks he would know him again. And remember, we have his fingerprints. Those fat thumbs beat the jackal out of his cover. Now, better where to pin down doing a little girl's memory of a bugle call that had already drawn our attention.

Who Was He?

You mean—here?

I mean here. I was a long time puzzling it out, and I've been no longer time proving what I grew to suspect. There were the charred bills. At first it looked like the end of the road, and that our kidnaper and the ransom money had both gone up in smoke. That was the way it was meant to look. Those twenty five hundred one-dollar bills were a blunt offering to fate. But it didn't work. Bad luck for the murderer. Triple murderer. For of course the man in the car was murdered too.

Who was he? Immerman?

"Immerman turned himself in at Corps Area Headquarters this morning after he read about the last murder. He admits to having robbed the taxi driver. He was stranded in Chicago without enough money to pay his way back to the post, and if he stayed over night he would be marked AWOL. That was his way out of the difficulty. He says he meant to pay the driver back anonymously. Then he heard Adam telling you about the insignia. He had missed one, but had no idea where he lost it. That scared him. But when he went to put it on his uniform blouse to go back to barracks that afternoon, there was another one gone. And when you saw him buying a pair at the Post Exchange, he decided the only thing for him to do was go AWOL in earnest.

"But if the man in the car wasn't Immerman, who was he?"

He looked at me. "You ought to be able to figure that out for yourself. There's only one person it could have been. There'll be dental records to prove it—there was a plate. Of course we don't actually need those records. We have also a baggage check which was found under the insole of one of Immerman's shoes—

Peter?" But you said it was a man. Could you be telling me that she—you don't mean you don't mean that it wasn't her niece.

I think it was at first. The little girl Julia talked to—they wouldn't have dared let the Randly child talk to anyone. Then Kelleher took the niece to Chicago and put her on the train for home, and it was the Randly child she brought back with her. Remember Julia said they didn't come out to the beach after that, and only took walks in the evening. Some sort of removable dye on the child's hair, and a pair of thick-lensed glasses with bows that were taped with adhesive under her hair, so that she couldn't take them off. The little girl told me about that herself when I thought to ask her. No wonder she couldn't see very well! Alright. There was savage joy in the fringed eyes now. That Bridewell woman will go to the chair, too, if I have my way. She's been groveling, said she agreed to the thing only because her husband was going on with it anyway, and she wanted to be sure the child came to no harm. But that the murders were done without her knowledge—

CASE IN WHICH MARION JUDGE RULED DISMISSED

A Sandusky county common pleas court case in which Judge Hector S Young of Marion ruled some time ago was dismissed Saturday after Prosecutor A H Hyzer failed to file an amended petition according to a news report from Fremont. The suit was brought by the prosecutor to recover $4413 from the late Claude C Waltemire, Findlay and Columbus road material salesman, County Commissioner W H Stine and a former commissioner Guy H Keller. Judge Young ruled his findings of a state examiner used in the petition did not constitute a cause of action. H W Wendelken special engineer examiner had reported that road material delivered to Sandusky county did not contain a laxe asphalt base as specified. The finding represented the difference in cost of materials.

And the Republican candidate for president will have just cause to be proud of his home town when he comes here Aug 17 to be formally notified of his nomination.

The 10,000 citizens of Elwood have left nothing undone to make the occasion a success. Upwards of 200,000 persons are expected to attend the ceremonies and everyone in this community from Mayor George M Bonham on down is ready to play host.

Barrel upon barrel of paint has been used as the whole town entered wholeheartedly into the business of sprucing up. Spacious green lawns have been groomed, fences painted and repaired and unsightly shacks and abandoned buildings razed in preparation for the home coming.

Democrats Help Too

Even the Democratic state highway commissioner got busy and repaved chuck holes in the pavement of state routes through the city.

The Nickle Plate railroad repainted its station here for the occasion in 30 or 40 cars and the stone farm was repainted and buffed.

Neatly painted signs have been erected to guide visitors to the high school where Willkie obtained his early education, to the place where he was born Feb 18 1892 and to the home where he spent his youth. The signs all read one in red, white and blue color.

Since the day that the GOP candidate announced plans for making his acceptance speech here, crowds have been increasing, numbers W F Smith superintendent of schools said that on an average of about once every 15 minutes most days a car stops in front of the school and some one jumps out and snaps a picture of the building.

One man walked up the school steps and then down explaining that he just wanted to walk down the same steps used by a future president, Smith said.

Floodlights have been installed on the high school ground for the benefit of night visitors and the 91 foot flagpole has been given a new coat of aluminum paint. A brief program will be held on the steps of the high school but the principal ceremonies will be staged in Callaway park because of the anticipated huge attendance.

Everything has been done on a tremendously large scale, however. Special tents will be set aside for state delegation headquarters, the press, radio and members of the notification committee. There will be approximately 150 tents for food and refreshments. A 600-acre tract of land has been cleared for parking automobiles.

The state police department has promised to send 100 officers to aid in directing traffic and handling the crowd and the city hopes to borrow 200 or 300 other policemen from neighboring towns.

Meanwhile, Elwood is doing land-office business while waiting for the big day to arrive. Willkie Souvenirs are being sold everywhere.

Soil Laboratory To Be Operated At Martel and Morral Schools Thursday

Soil testing laboratories designed to give Marion county farmers an opportunity to have the various types of soil on their farms analyzed will be operated Thursday at the Morral and Martel schools.

Tests of soil samples will be used as a basis for a number of specific recommendations to farmers regarding the amount of lime needed to insure good clover and alfalfa crops and the most desirable type and quality of fertilizer for a particular type of soil, H S Porteus county agricultural agent has announced. Suggestions also will be made as to which stage in rotation the application of fertilizer will bring the best results. The tests will be made without charge.

The laboratory at Martel school will be held from 9 to 11:30 a m Thursday and the laboratory at Morral will be held in the afternoon from 1 to 5 o'clock. Both will be in charge of Earl Jones of Columbus agronomist in the state extension service.

Farmers wishing to take part in the testing have been asked to take samples of different soil types in the field as indicated by color, texture etc to obtain samples from the parts of the field that have had different liming treatments in the past and also from the parts of the field on which the past growth of legumes and other crops has been noticeably different from the field as a whole. Each sample should consist of about one pint of soil.

Arrangements for the laboratories have been worked out by H Porteus with A J Bishop vocational agriculture instructor at Morral school cooperating in plans for the Morral laboratory.

OHIO DOCTORS DRAFT PREPAREDNESS PLAN

Committee Named To Marshal State Medical Men.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O, Aug 13—Instant availability of maximum medical resources in event of a national emergency was pledged today by Ohio's physicians.

Dr Harry V Paryzek acting for the Ohio State Medical association named a special committee to marshal all medical forces and coordinate with other states a national physicians preparedness program.

Dr Paryzek reported that nearly 12 per cent of Ohio's 9 000 physicians were definitely affiliated with some military group. He said 875 held commissions in the U S army reserve 60 in the naval reserve and 60 in the Ohio national guard. Nearly 100 he said were now training with the second army in Wisconsin maneuvers.

Because of the extreme importance of adequate medical services to both the civilian and military populations in the event of a national emergency the entire profession would probably be mobilized Dr Paryzek added with assignments made on the basis of the facts revealed by a preparedness survey.

A questionnaire to determine military training and the capacity in which they best could serve their country had been answered by more than 4 000 Ohio physicians and Dr Paryzek predicted that nearly all the state's doctors would reply within a few weeks.

Half a dozen factors are causing many people to lay in their winter's supply of coal as fast as possible. Government regulation of coal prices through the Guffey Act (which goes into effect Sept. 3), heavy increased demands from the rearmament industries and the possibility of increased exports has brought about heavy summer buying. If you are a dealer in coal now is the time to advertise to keep those orders flowing in....If you are a user of coal NOW is the time to buy.

FIVE-DAY JAIL TERM GIVEN MARION MAN

Sentenced by Judge Hazen After Quarrel at Home.

A family quarrel brought a five-day jail sentence to Dallas Gilbert, 34, of 762 Cheney avenue today.

Gilbert pleaded guilty before Municipal Judge Hazen this morning to an assault and battery charge filed by his wife, Mrs. Ruth Gilbert, who charged he struck her several times during an argument at their home yesterday. In sentencing Gilbert, Judge Hazen commented that "a fine would just work a hardship on your children so I'm going to give you time to get cooled off."

Police said they arrested Gilbert at the home about 4 p. m. after receiving a report of an altercation there. When the officers arrived Mrs. Gilbert and several children had fled and Gilbert had barricaded himself in the house, they reported.

HOSPITAL OFFICIALS CALLED TO MEETING

Service Plan To Be Discussed at Delaware.

Hospital officials of Delaware, Morrow and Crawford counties and Marion City hospital have been invited to a dinner meeting Wednesday night at 6:30 at Hotel Harding to hear Ralph W. Jordan, director of the Central Hospital Service association, explain a new non-profit hospital service plan.

The meeting is being held at the request of the Ohio Hospital association, according to Mr. Jordan. The association has divided the state into districts for development of the plan, he said.

In addition to the Marion City hospital board, officials have been invited from Jane M. Case hospital in Delaware and Crestline Emergency hospital, the mayor and hospital commission from Galion and the mayor and safety director at Bucyrus.

The Central Hospital Service association is licensed by the Ohio superintendent of insurance. Its plan is one by which a number of employed persons each make regular and equal payments into a common fund to be used for the payment of hospital care for any of the subscribers in case of necessity. It covers all illness and injuries excepting those provided for under the workmen's compensation act or other laws, and includes room and board in a semi-private room not to exceed two beds; general nursing care; operating room; ordinary drugs and dressings and routine laboratory services for 21 days in a contract year. Each enrolled person in a family is entitled to the same benefits. Professional services not arranged for by the contract, including the physician, surgeon, anesthetist and X-ray technician are not included.

Marilyn's Picture Travels Far

Some idea of the extent to which pictures of Miss Marilyn Meseke, Marion's "Miss America," will be used in the U. S. army's recruiting campaign was indicated today in an Associated Press dispatch from Washington, D. C. The pictures were taken last week at the Meseke home on South Prospect street by an officer and photographer from Fort Hayes in Columbus.

"The army called a former 'Miss America' to the colors in its drive to enlist an additional 50,000 men as soon as possible," the dispatch said.

Recruiting offices gave nation-wide publicity to a picture of Miss Meseke, smiling her approval of the familiar poster of Uncle Sam saying:

"I want you!"

Her photograph already has been used "with good effect" in the recruiting campaign of the Fifth Corps Area, which has its headquarters at Columbus, O.

Pretty girls aren't new in recruiting drives—they helped the army with volunteers in World war days—but the recruiting service is about to try something else that is.

For the first time in its history, it will send truck and trailer units to small towns where the populations are not large enough to justify maintenance of permanent recruiting offices. First deliveries are just being made on an order for 27 of these units, and officials hope that most of them will be ready by the time the county fair season is in full swing in September.

The technique of the units will vary with the talents of the officer in command. But generally speaking there will be music to attract a crowd, just like a medicine show. And then through loud speakers the officer will talk about the service and about America.

Newspapers and radio stations are credited with admirable co-operation in disseminating appeals for enlistments.

To keep the campaign rolling, the army plans to place a contract later this week with a national advertising agency for a five-month advertising program to cost $50,000 a month.

Smear Words

THOUGHTFUL citizens are reaching quietly for their insect spray guns. There is an exterminating job to be done.

Too many important things are crying to be done to waste time in this year's presidential campaign on gadfly swatting.

Specifically, voters aren't going to let themselves be preoccupied with a barrage of smear words; they want to hear the issues.

Democratic spokesmen, beginning with Wendell Willkie's nomination at Philadelphia and increasingly ever since have tried to smear him with his former public utilities connection. They plainly are counting on the effect of the last few years of New Deal smearing of this particular branch of private enterprise to rub off on Mr. Willkie. Of course, Mr. Willkie's public utility connection has no more to do with the price of eggs in 1940 than President Roosevelt's former association with a number of private enterprises, some of which did not have spotless records for inspection under political spotlight. If New Deal smearers were to accuse Mr. Willkie of shady connection, that would be something he could answer; they merely mention the utilities connection, however, confident that to be connected with a business developed so successfully that politicians now itch to get their fingers into it is, ipso facto, something to be ashamed of.

Republicans, on their part, have chosen boasism as their smear word. The New Deal is supported by certain corrupt machines therefore the New Deal is corrupt. It is true that the Hague, Nash-Kelly and Tammany Hall machines are no bargain, but do Republicans assume that the machines they leaned on in their lush days were lily-white? Voters don't. They want spokesmen for the two parties to talk about the issue. The issue is whether the United States is going to continue traveling in circles under an administration which follows the line of least resistance, or begin traveling in the straight line of Mr. Willkie's credo that the more abundant life calls first of all for more abundance.

Make-Believe Armament

LACK of tanks, guns, armored cars and other war impediments is pathetic, but not disgraceful. The nation gives its sympathy to soldiers brushing up on fighting tactics with gas-pipe guns, ordinary trucks and plenty of imagination, but not its apology. Americans honestly believed war had been outlawed.

They don't distrust ability of its manpower to turn this make believe armament to good account. While it is unfortunate that many men sacrificing time and effort for national defense must do their training with make-believe weapons, the fact remaining that all training for war is a process of make-believe. The hits, misses, casualties and problems all are imaginary. Even the navy, whose war games come closer to the real thing than the army's, must stop far short of reality.

Main thing in training for war is coordination of attack. The current tendency is to talk of this as though Germans had discovered it. Fact of the matter is, if military historians are correct, nearly every battle which has been lost was lost due to faulty coordination. Given approximate equality of weapons, every battle thereafter is decided by the quality of generalship.

The man power being prepared for the defense of the United States is equal or superior to that of any other nation. Forging it into an effectual military organization is largely a matter of developing familiarity with problems of rapid troop movements in mechanized warfare. Absence of real weapons during training is by no means an insuperable handicap. The highly efficient German army trained with make-believe weapons.

No Lag in Religion

THE statistical story of church membership from 1926 to 1936, released by the census bureau, tells of a rise from 54,576,346 to 55,807,366 members during the decade. Current figures on this aspect of the cultural life of the country since 1936 are not available.

Gain of approximately a million members in 10 years confirms the common belief that church membership has been affected adversely by competing sources of interest and activity. Church spokesmen have deplored this tendency; if membership had increased in proportion to population (from 117 to 128 million from 1926 to 1936) the latest total would be approximately 59,000,000, instead of less than 56,000,000.

Reliability of statistics to indicate the state of religion in the nation may be questioned, however. In addition to approximately 44 per cent of the population formally affiliated in 1936, millions of others describe themselves as church members. Furthermore, there is no question but that religion's influence on the life of the people is as great or greater than it ever was. A vitally significant effect of the danger America faces in a world challenged by violence is democracy's debt to religion for its ideal of a world in which violence never shall be condoned.

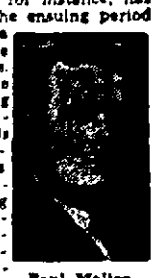
News Behind the News

Willkie Believed Ready To Compromise on Campaign with C. O. P. Old Guard.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug 13—Indistinct noises indicating discontent within the Republican organization are genuine groans and grunts against the way Wendell Willkie has been handling the party routine. A good many of the in-and-out-of-season party lieutenants apparently resent Mr. Willkie's failure to set up an orthodox single unit party organization along historic Republican lines. One eminent gentleman who waved the flag for Willkie at Philadelphia, for instance, has spent most of the ensuing period sulking with a fishing rod in the north woods. Others have been whispering that the organization work is far below previous campaigns. Still more, capable of making Republican financial predictions, are privately prophesying Mr. Willkie will not be able to raise sufficient funds the way he has been going, not even the extremely modest $2,300,000 to which he restricted his organization.



Paul Mallon

Mr. Willkie has apparently heard these noises and is moving swiftly to correct the situation. It appears he went into this campaign determined to rest a wholly new spirit into the Republican party, and did not want too many old faces in the front row. It is possible he has also had less respect for organization than those more experienced party men who have been closely associated with previous campaigns.

A compromise seems in the making. While Mr. Willkie will undoubtedly conduct an individualistic campaign, the steps now afoot should swing the older party people into action.

Critical Period

This election will be settled between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15. In those 30 days Mr. Willkie either will or will not gather the confidence of a sufficient number of the great mass of independent voters to determine the majority. This opinion represents an almost composite view of a great number of politicians in both parties who believe Mr. Roosevelt is doing just about all he can do in conducting his campaign by inspecting national defense projects, and that the result will be determined by what Mr. Willkie does.

The way New Deal pitch-men are talking up the subject of drafting capital has inspired some popular suspicions that they may have a plan—They have—and several. Long before Mrs. Roosevelt started advancing the idea in her column, Jerome Frank, chairman of the securities exchange commission, hinted in a speech before the war college that he had been rummaging around in the Maynard Keynes realm for a new program to conscript the vast reservoirs of savings from banks. No. 1 brain truster, Assistant State Secretary Berle, had even earlier started working on a program of creating government - sponsored capital banks to finance trade expansion.

But Leon Hederson, assistant to Frank, and the price man in the nation defense commission, is understood to be the inspiration behind the current renewal of agitation. He has been silently cradling a proposal concerning the relation of banks to the defense program which may turn out to be the new rabbit.

How far the agitation is likely to go is not yet clear. Much of the officially sponsored talk here seems to have a wholly political flavor. The idea of conscripting capital makes an excellent official offset to the debate in congress on the bill to draft young men from 21 to 31. Yet at root there is obvious widespread sentiment among New Dealers to have the treasury take idle savings and capital at some insignificant rate of interest, such as one-half of one per cent, to finance a war if there is to be one and perhaps even the current national defense program.

Efficiency Campaign

The whiskers of naval admirals have been blown askew by rumors that new Navy Secretary Frank Knox quietly called in a Chicago firm of efficiency experts to find where the department could be improved.

If there is anything which would give the old salts double apoplexy with a side case of palsy, it is a prospect of reforming the manner in which things have been done traditionally in that department. No navy secretary has yet won over the admirals. Developments are awaited.

Carol "Plays 'Em Close"

He Has to Watch Sharp, or He Won't Have Anything to Watch

(Editor's note: The story of Rumania's troubles reveals King Carol at his best. It is written below for the Special News Service of The Associated Press by the staff-man finish De Luce, whose straight stories during Germany's conquest of Poland attracted nationwide attention. Since then De Luce has been in the Balkans.)

By DANIEL DE LUCE

BUCHAREST.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—Up against the toughest political poker game of his career, King Carol II plays his cards close to his gold-braided silver-medaled chest.

The stakes are high: Rumania's independence and territory, the king's own job.

The other players are masters—Stalin of Moscow, Hitler of Berlin, and Mussolini of Rome.

Yet Carol, the "little fellow" in the game, is at his nervy best when the risks are greatest.

CAROL

After ten years of a winning streak, which began when he flew back from exile to gain the throne in 1930, the luck of the draw went against Carol Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen late in June.

Behind the white stone facade of his palace on Calea Victoriei, the king, who was once a princely playboy, received the drastic terms of a Soviet Russian ultimatum.

Moscow's demand was for Bessarabia and northern Bucovina—about 20 per cent of Rumania's land for people. Soviet tanks, planes and troops massed for a giant push. Resistance meant fighting alone, leaving other frontiers undefended.

To give in might mean keeping the rest of Rumania intact for a better day.

So He Yields

So, by July 3rd, a great belt of territory from the mouth of the Danube to the northeast flanks of the Carpathian mountains was swallowed by the U.S.S.R.

Such a national disaster might have wrecked another dynasty.

The king fired the cabinet and chose a different set of ministers with pro-Nazi opinions. He kept the army mobilized and locked up the most dangerous radicals of both the right and left.

Furious anti-Jewish feeling threatened to explode in the "old kingdom's" cities. The fanatical Iron Guard, although split into factions, clamored for complete governmental control.

While Rumania seethed internally, bruised and angry over the Russian squeeze-play, Hungary's campaign for the return of Transylvania reached white heat and Bulgaria's chronic agitation for southern Dobruja grew more bitter.

Then Germany stepped into the middle of the discord, calling to conference Hungary's premier and foreign minister, and later, Rumania's and Bulgaria's, too.

At a time when he needed it most, King Carol obviously looked to Adolf Hitler to grant him a breathing spell—if nothing more. Hitler told the Balkans to settle their troubles soon or he would step in to do the job.

"Big Boy"

Government underlings speak in appreciative whispers of the "big boy" but rarely mention Carol by name. Enemies accuse him of many mistakes in the past, but the more honest concede that Carol turned a good share of these "mistakes" to his ultimate advantage.

Could another man have saved Bessarabia? Most Rumanians doubt it.

The die was cast last August when Germany and Russia made a working agreement that caught not only Rumania but England, France and Poland off guard.

After Poland's downfall, the Rumania army command redrew its defense plans, convinced that Bessarabia was strategically at Russia's mercy and that fortifying the Dniester would be of little avail.

So, concrete was poured for Dniester river bunkers in the dead of winter, while Soviet guards watched suspiciously from the opposite bank. The Carol line! Even the poorest peasant was invited to subscribe to a $10,000,000 fund to finance it.

The king did not know then that Anglo-French guarantees of Rumanian integrity would sound ring hollow, that the Weygand army would be immobilized, that France itself would capitulate or that Soviet tanks would scramble unhindered over the ramparts of the costly Carol line.

Keeps His Courage

The energetic, 46-year-old king, burning the lights past midnight in his palace study, never showed faint heart.

The Iron Guards wanted to become the government. Carol gave them just four out of 18 important posts. The king pulled Rumania out of the League of Nations, renounced pledges of the ex-Allies, veered his foreign policy to outright pro-Axis.

Not generally known is the fact that Carol's private fortune suffered when the Russians seized Bucovina. He owned shares in a big sugar company which had plants and 1,500 freight cars of its refined product in that area. Still, the king is a rich man personally with industrial interests that extend to other parts of the globe.

The California division of forestry had to cope with 8,800 forest and brush fires in 1939.

Too much and too little education hinder the mind.—(Pascal)

SETTLE THE QUESTION!

Today and Tomorrow

No Deep Question of Principle Involved in Conscription Plan, Writer Asserts.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THERE must be many who think, as Mr. Mark Sullivan said the other day, that in the debates over the conscription bill there is at issue "a deep question of principle." They are, I submit, mistaken. There would be an issue of principle if, in fact, the congressional critics of the Burke-Wadsworth bill were opposed to the principle of conscription. But they are not. The three senators who brought in the minority report are not opposed to the principle of conscription. The former secretary of war, Mr. Woodring, who is cited as their chief authority, is not opposed to the principle of conscription.

Walter Lippmann

Though they say they are opposed to "peace-time" conscription and denounce it "as abhorrent to the ideals of patriotic Americans" and as "utterly repugnant to American democracy and American traditions," the fact of the matter is that the minority, including Mr. Woodring, are not opposed in principle even to "peace-time" conscription. For Mr. Woodring has declared that "if the voluntary system fails" to provide enough men, then he will support peace-time conscription, and the minority members of the senate committee announce that they "will gladly support conscription" in peace-time if voluntary enlistment should fail to recruit enough men.

No Principle At Stake

Can it really be said then that there is a deep question of principle at stake when the opposition in congress (a) accepts the principle of conscription in time of war and (b) accepts the principle of conscription in time of peace if enough volunteers do not come forward? If conscription as such is wrong in principle it is wrong in time of war. If not conscription as such but "peace-time conscription" is "repugnant" and "abhorrent," then it is no less repugnant and abhorrent to conscript men if not enough men volunteer. For when you are telling young men that you propose to conscript them if they do not volunteer, why pretend that you are preserving their freedom of choice? Can it be said with any sincerity, or even with a straight face, that you are adhering to the voluntary system when you tell young men that they will surely be drafted in time of war, and that if they do not volunteer quickly, they will, surely be drafted, anyway?

There is no substantial difference of principle between the supporters and the critics of the Burke-Wadsworth bill. The supporters invite men to volunteer and establish conscription to supplement volunteering. The critics invite men to volunteer and then brandish the threat of conscription to promote volunteering and make a promise of conscription to supplement volunteering. Thus both sides use the principle of compulsion: the advocates of the bill applying compulsion directly, the critics of the bill applying it indirectly by using the threat of compulsion. Both sides have abandoned the voluntary principle, and the only dispute is whether to exert compulsion directly or indirectly, to exert it now or later. This may be an interesting dispute. But it involves no deep question of principle.

The Minority Report

The really conscientious opponents of conscription, those who reject it as morally wrong, are grossly deceived if they think that the minority of the senate committee or ex-Secretary Woodring are championing their cause. They should read the minority report. They will find that the minority "does approve" the "registration and its exemptions" of men between 21 and 31 years of age; that, in other words, the minority approves the setting up at once of the whole machinery of conscription. Having set up the machinery of conscription, having registered and classified the man who are liable to be conscripted, the minority then proposes to wait un-

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Wednesday, Aug. 13, 1930.

Final figures from the state gave Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland a plurality of 40,000 over his opponents in the race for Democratic nomination for U. S. senator.

Two rewards of $500 each were posted by Marion county commissioners for capture and conviction of the slayers of Raymond Steele of Caledonia, who was shot in a North Main street filling station holdup and Amos Schultz, who was killed when his restaurant on North Main street was robbed.

Application for remission of a judgment of $25,750 held by the state against H. N. Oberlander and George Rinsel, bonds for Wilbur Hand, now serving a term in the Ohio penitentiary for robbery of a Galion bank, was filed in common pleas court at Bucyrus.

Capt. Frank Hawks set a new trans-continental speed record of 12 hours, 25 minutes and three seconds, beating by more than two hours the previous record held by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Vernon McCreary of 762 Sheridan road.

A 4-4 tie kept the Serv-U-Well and Prospect softball teams deadlocked in the race for championship of the commercial league. The game made 28 innings in which the two teams had unsuccessfully tried to settle the question.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Friday, Aug. 13, 1920.

William G. Slack began his duties as director of public safety on the appointment of Mayor T. E. Andrews. Mr. Slack, a city councilman, succeeded George B. Knapp who resigned.

Ohio newspaper men heard Senator Harding, Republican presidential nominee, make a plea for a return to "the old standards of honesty and the lofty standards of fidelity" in an address from the Harding front porch on Mt. Vernon avenue. Republican and independent newspapermen were gathered here for a conference under the auspices of the Ohio Republican Editorial association and the Harding for-President Newspaper club. Discussing the newsprint problem Senator Harding said it is obvious there must be a forest policy which will make the country self-reliant once more. "Forest conservation is a necessary accompaniment to printing expansion and a matter of common concern to all the people," he said. After the speech making the editors marched from the Harding home to the Masonic temple where a group picture was taken and lunch was served. Senator Harding was introduced to the group by John Hoplev of Bucyrus . . . Clarence B. Miller, secretary of the Republican national committee, came here from Washington to meet a delegation of Minnesota Republicans who were calling on Senator Harding. Mr. Miller and the senator discussed the agricultural situation in the northwest . . . In a telegram to former U. S. Senator Frank P. Flint of California, Senator Harding let it be known that if he should be elected to the presidency he intended to see that American industry was protected by tariff against foreign importations.

Save Every Tooth

A correspondent writes, "In connection with your article on arthritis I have a question to ask and that is in connection with dead teeth. Should one with arthritis have all his dead teeth extracted?"

It is a very good question. Questions are good in proportion to the difficulty one has in answering them. So if this is very good, you must expect the answer to be somewhat qualified.

The principles which form the background of the question are: first, the idea that arthritis is caused by focal infection; that the inflammation of the joints in arthritis gets there from some such focal point as the teeth or tonsils; second, that dead teeth are dead because they have been the seat of infection.

A dead tooth is one in which the nerve is degenerated and the pulp has consequently atrophied. Nearly always this has been caused by a previous infection arising from a filling. Dead teeth often have begun as apical abscesses—these become stable and harmless, but they are a potential source of reinfection.

So the question comes down to how much infection a dead tooth carries, and how much harm it is doing to the arthritis.

Dentists and physicians are becoming more conservative about this whole matter. After all, teeth are very valuable adjuncts to nutrition. If a dead tooth is not actually doing any harm, it may be doing a great deal of good. The fad of radical exodontia is distinctly losing its momentum. For years we have been in an orgy of tooth pulling.

The theory of focal infection also has undergone a somewhat conservative change. Dr. Charles Mayo said: "The future of medical science rests with the doctor who can stop or kill the germs as they develop in the mouth." The future of medical science is a somewhat large order. Doctor Rosenow, one of the leaders of the focal infection idea, writes: "I do not advocate wrecking the mouth," adding later, "but I do believe a tooth is only a tooth, while a life is worth more than all the teeth in the world."
